  Working in Research and Development department (R&D), I started a project named Ideas-and-Needs-platform (INP) and I used to design and administer database based on tasks and relations and based on MVC design, I used to develop www.nan.ac alongside with its sub-domains (www.ikco.nan.ac, www.mop.nan.ac, www.abu.nan.ac, www.parsa.nan.ac and www.edu.nan.ac). As I am workaholic, assiduous, responsible, and trustworthy I was the only and the key developer of that platform for about two years. Since its start, It has been growing a lot and now other developers are working on it. It is becoming more and more popular and getting more and more users and visitors day by day.

  Beside developing web application and managing database, I was dealing with:
  - Analyzing systems and turn them into relational entities in database
  - Providing highly complicated stored procedures
  - Providing reports of data from database
  - Visualizing data in charts on web

  In addition, doing many other related developing, network and computer related tasks.

  The above mentioned website was private and was only used in the office by agents and by costumers and as my first experience I developed it with features like:
  - Providing Search to filter data for better recommendations
  - Using Microsoft Identity for providing security
  - Storing and Retrieving file data (mostly images)
